MOOSERS SING AND WAVE BANDANAS

Connecticut State Convention of the New Party Opens With a Noisy Demonstration

TICKETS OF ADMISSION SELL FOR 50 CENTS

Governor Johnson of California in Opening Speech Declares That Bosses Assassinated Republican Party at Chicago—Organization Not Completed at Time of Adjournment—Luther, Alsop and Smith Dodging Nomination.

Hartford, Sept. 25.—The most unique political convention in Connecticut was opened for the progressive party by Gov. Hiram W. Johnson of California, the vice presidential candidate tonight. With militant hymns the waving of red bandanas and bandanas, and the blare of bands, the delegates to the convention rose in a body to cheer Gov. Johnson and the name of Col. Roosevelt and again. Only a fortnight ago both the republican and democratic conventions filled the Food Guard's armory with enthusiastic delegates but the scenes there were mild in comparison with that presented tonight.

Melody Like a Camp Meeting.
Every foot of space that legally could be used had its delegate. Every one who could carry a tune lustily joined in singing "America." The High Hymn the Republic and "Raise the Roosevelt Banner," and the volume of melody was like that which sweeps a camp meeting with its throngs of devotees. The army was bright with colors, and a Roosevelt banner hung over the platform. The "votes for women" banner of the suffrage association was spread over a balcony. Every one had copies of the hymns and suffrage literature of which Mrs. Thomas Hepburn and a bevy of young women were the distributors.

Big Street Demonstration.
Before the rally the progressives had a street parade with banners, transparencies, bands and drum corps, delegates burning red fire and the sidewalks crowded with people who caught the enthusiasm and cheered time and again. It was estimated that 1200 men marched. At street junctions traffic was held up. The banners were moved and the transparencies showed hats "in the ring," "Teddy Bears," political mottoes and suffragist signs, creating great hilarity. Delegates were waving on their hats, arms and around their necks, many elderly men carried red fire. Observers said that the street scenes were like those in the Bryan campaign of '08.

Tickets "Sold at 50 Cents."
On reaching the armory the delegates had to force their way in through the crowd. Those who had got in early found a ticket at an almost unheard of thing at a political convention. The money "goes to help the cause." It was 50 cents in the air rose the banners. Bang went the gavel of Senator Alsop as he tried to call the convention to order as temporary chairman. Cheers swept the hall as President Luther of Trinity college went on the platform.

Convention Called to Order.
Above the din Senator Alsop said: "The first convention of the progressive party in this state is called to order." Quiet came with the noise of the hall as men and Rev. Rockwell Harmon Potter of Hartford opened the session with a prayer for those who are leading the people. The hall was hushed during the prayer, but from outside came echoes of the struggle of men to get into the place. Senator Alsop named Mr. Lloyd of Fairfield and Prof. Henderson of Yale to escort Gov. Johnson to the platform.

"Raise the Roosevelt Banner."
A great wave of red spread over the hall as hundreds of bandanas waved a large flag. The band broke out with "Raise the Roosevelt Banner" to the tune of "Marching Through Georgia," and the delegates carried it through cheering following, and it was only when the band was playing a photograph was ready to take a photograph of the convention that they subsided, and patiently awaited the flash. The crowd fell and while it was being adjusted the delegates cracked jokes, and at the photographer's expense. Three cheers for Johnson, the vice presidential candidate, and the cheers were unbroken.

Governor Johnson Speaks.
Governor Johnson stood forth and quickly got the attention of the audience. He said that before he entered New England he had been told that he was to enter conservative territory, but he had found the same spirit of cordiality and political evolution here he had found in every other state in the union. He would leave Hartford and New England with the feeling that the cause he represented was as safe in Connecticut as it was in Illinois or California.

Assassinated Republican Party.
He predicted that when Connecticut gets a direct primary it will smash the machines effectively. A delegate yelled: "And Roraback, too."

Governor Johnson reviewed in detail the duties of the republican national convention in Chicago. He said that when the self-styled bosses there had by chicanery transmitted a minority into a majority they assassinated the republican party.

Scores Barnes of New York.
Governor Johnson referring to conditions in the great state of New York said that a gentleman named Barnes sits in Albany and performs all the duties of citizenship for those represented in the republican party and in the city of New York. He likened this state of affairs to those existing in his own state, where all men and women are endeavoring to perform, as individuals their duties.

Governor Johnson explained the practical workings of the recall and referendum in California. He called them the instrumentality of popular rule. He said the progressive party between the republican and all classes of the people, but it does not believe in the perpetration of wrong under the name of protection. He said the only rational policy toward the trusts

Wilson's Idea of Progressivism

ELUCIDATED AT HARTFORD AND NEW HAVEN.

RECALL OF JUDICIARY

Opposed by Governor, But Favors Recall of Administrative Officers, Also the Initiative and Referendum.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 25.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson admittedly went forth today toward defining his ideas on progressive principles that he has since he became the presidential nominee of the democratic party. In a speech that was received with marked enthusiasm at Hartford, and another at New Haven tonight, the governor explained that he favored the initiative and the referendum, as well as the recall of administrative officers, but that he was unwillingly opposed to the recall of the judiciary. Gov. Simon E. Baldwin introduced Governor Wilson.

Direct Election of Senators.
The democratic presidential nominee on permanent organization tonight illustrated some of the points in his speech, which included comment on the direct primary system and the direct election of United States senators by popular vote to present conditions on the Pacific coast. He was asked tonight whether he had referred to California he had in mind the presence in Hartford and New Haven today at different hours of Governor Johnson of California. Governor Wilson said he had not thought of California for the reason that he was progressive was to preserve the essentials of our institutions, for one essential of progressivism, said the governor.

Seats in Senate Bought.
After paying tribute to the character of the minority of the men of the United States senate, the governor said: "It would be painful to repeat to you some of the processes by which seats have been bought in the United States senate, and you know, as the whole people of the United States know, that a little group of senators holding the balance of power have again and again been able to defeat programmes of reform upon which the whole country had set its heart."

"Am Acting Consistently."
"And while it is true that American people are not used to the conduct of American processes without some departure from the ideals of the constitution, it is nevertheless true that we have had many shameful instances of practice which we can absolutely remove by the direct election of senators by the people themselves. And, therefore, I am not at all inconsistent with either the spirit or the form of American government in advocating the direct election of United States senators."

Initiative, Referendum and Recall.
"Let's get another step deeper. I hope you won't think that I am going too far in even mentioning in your presence the initiative and the referendum and the recall. It is the last word that makes most men shrink. There are communities, there are states in the United States that are ready to admit that it is perhaps premature, that perhaps it will never be necessary, to discuss these measures. But the great process of education that we are engaged in is to make the fact that these measures have been discussed and have been adopted in those states where the electorate had been convinced that the people have a representative government. Let no man deceive himself by the fallacy that anybody proposes to substitute direct legislation by the people for a direct reference of laws voted in the legislature to the vote of the people for representative government. The direct process of legislation that we have always said that they were intending to recover representative government, that they had no place where they could see how they have been controlled by the people, and the chambers were really representative of the community which they profess to serve."

Recall of Administrative Officers.
The initiative is a rational procedure for the recall of administrative officers on behalf of the people themselves. The referendum is a means of seeing that the laws that are made are not put upon the statute books but are checked by being submitted to the vote of the people. When you resort to direct legislation, you are not in a sense of mischief in the future. It will be possible by a senate and slow process prescribed by the law to get rid of corrupt officials before they have been corrupted. Because you must admit that it is a little inconvenient sometimes to have what someone calls an astrologer in the system of government, a term of government in which you can change anything until there has been a certain number of revolutions of the earth, and you see how they have been grounded in the traditions of American affairs, particularly as they derive their origin from New England, can any sane person be so stupid as to recall administrative officers?

Opposes Recall of Judges.
"It is another matter when it comes to the judiciary. I myself have never been convinced that the recall of judges is a good thing. I have been a great applause interrupted by the speaker at this point, and he continued: "Not that some judges haven't deserved to be recalled—that isn't the point. But because that is threatening the symptoms instead of the disease. It is very violent and very dangerous. Gentlemen, there have been courts in the United States that have been so corrupt that they have been removed by the people. There have been supreme courts in our states at which men without privilege could not get justice. There have been judges who were not men of the people, and not as the servants of the public, and there can be no moral objection to removing such men from public service."

Some Shameful Chapters.
"Ah, there have been some shameful chapters in this story. Think of it. The reason you applauded just now is that you feel, as I feel, that the judiciary process is the last ultimate safeguard of the things that we want to hold stable in this country, but suppose that that safeguard is corrupted, suppose that it does not guard my interests and yours, but guards merely the interests of a very small group of individuals; and that whenever your interests clash with the interests of these few individuals, these few individuals have to give way, though you more

Marconi in an Auto Collision

WIRELESS INVENTOR BADLY INJURED IN ITALY.

TWO CARS OVERTURNED

Impossible to Determine if Optical Nerve of Inventor is Injured—Severely Bruised About the Body.

Spedia, Italy, Sept. 25.—William Marconi of wireless fame was injured today in an automobile accident near Borketto, in the valley of the Vara river. The extent of his injuries have not been entirely disclosed, but he was brought back to this city with bandages around his head. He was suffering from a wound of the right eye and his right cheek and temple were badly bruised.

Collided With Another Auto.
Mr. Marconi was motoring with his wife when shortly after passing Borketto in turning a sharp curve his machine came into collision with an automobile which was proceeding from Genoa. Both cars were overturned. Mrs. Marconi was not injured, but Mr. Marconi's secretary and the chauffeur received slight injuries. In the other car were five women, all of whom were found to be suffering from severe bruises and shock when assisted from the wreckage.

Optical Nerve May Be Injured.
When word of the accident was received here an automobile from the naval department was dispatched to the scene to return the body of Mr. Marconi. The former's injuries had already been dressed by a physician who was summoned immediately after the accident. Mr. Marconi had been a visitor at the royal hunting lodge at San Rossore, near Cortona, and a report of the accident was immediately telegraphed to the king.

Severe Bruises About Body.
Marconi also received severe bruises about the body. His temperature was reported to be above 100, and it was also announced that he was bearing considerable pain with fortitude. Among the inquiries was one made by the king.

TAFT ADDRESSES THE LOYAL WAR GOVERNORS
President Lauds the Fourteen Executives as Heroes.

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 25.—President Taft was the principal speaker today at Altoona's celebration of the meeting there of the loyal war governors, who decided that Abraham Lincoln and his war policy should be upheld, and his call for more troops should be met promptly with volunteers. Through that meeting and those which followed, the president declared, there entered into the soul of Lincoln the conviction that the country was behind him in his effort to end the war and bring the south back into the union. The fourteen loyal governors who supported Lincoln in the dark days of 1862, the president called heroes who did not desert the cause they were about to do, who made no use of "but" and "ifs" but who said "We'll see you through."

REPUBLICAN TARIFF TRAIN ON THE TRAIL OF WILSON.
Speakers to Follow Him and Answer His Arguments.

PREPARING FOR SERIOUS TROUBLE AT BELFAST
Large Force of Soldiers in Readiness for Any Emergency.
Belfast, Ireland, Sept. 25.—Regiments of infantry and Scottish Borderers will be drafted into Belfast tomorrow morning in anticipation of trouble on Ulster day, when the covenant in defiance of home rule is to be signed by "Ulsterites." The Royal Irish Rifles, already stationed here, are confined to barracks in readiness for emergencies.

Get at Seat of Authority.
"If I mark you, I say it at one time the supreme court of the state of California, what was the trouble? Would you remedy it by recalling the judges of the supreme court of California? Not so long as the Southern Pacific railroad could substitute others for them, you wouldn't be getting deep enough. Where you want to go is to the seat of authority. Where you want to go is to the process by which those judges were picked out. And when you get there you lead to the moral of the whole of the situation. This thing that grows like a cancer in our vitals must be cut out, though I grant you it must be cut out with the skill and tenderness of the surgeon who will not disfigure the body to which this ugly thing is attached."
